

BUY AN OLIVE TREE FOR CHRISTMAS 2005

Now is the time of the year that many of you will decide to spend money on one of the freshly-cut Christmas trees that you will decorate with tinsel and baubles and then tuck Christmas presents under its branches in readiness for the celebrations on Christmas Day. In the spirit of festive buying, few of you will think about the days after when the tree, devoid of presents long since opened, begins to droop and dry out waiting for someone to take down the decorations and relegate the tree to the rubbish.

The cost of the tree is no doubt worth the few days of pleasure it brings to young and old alike. But, how much more pleasure would we have if the tree did not die after its usefulness was over. For a mere $5, you can buy a tiny tree that will be planted to replace one of the thousands of olive trees that have been ripped out by Israeli bulldozers. It won't be a Christmas tree, but it will be a tree that will yield the precious fruit that has sustained Palestinian families in the Holy Land for centuries.

For your $5 you will receive an Olive Tree band that will remind you of the tree your gift will be helping to plant. If everyone just bought one such band, soon Palestine's razed land will become orchards of waving olive branches once again and what a gift that would be for the plundered land and its oppressed people.

Women for Palestine is making this a Christmas project to bring some cheer to Palestine. Please help us by buying one or more of the Olive Tree bands or even buying one of the $20 "Save Palestinian Trees" T-shirts.
